The sun is up
get out of bed
why do you run
you run too far did she get up
why do you sob
you are a pet
be not so bad

get me a rod
are you in bed
bid him get up
ask him to go
the sun is set the sky is red
why do you nod

you nod as you sit
you sit all too low
you run all the day
you are a bad boy
did you bid him run did you ask him in did the boy get up
did she run too far

get up out of bed
how far did you go
the sun is not up
the lad is in bed
why do you run out
was the way so bad
can you eat an egg
let us go to bed

be not so dull
be not so rash
be not so rude
be not a fool
be kind to all
be just and true
be a good boy
be a good girl

take off your hat
make a fine line
go to your seat
hold up your head
call in the boys
hang up your hat
wade not too deep
go soon to bed

run not too fast
walk not too slow
make not too free
do harm to none
keep from the dock
I want a book
read not too fast
mind what you read

walk with wise men
play with good boys
they talk too loud
they drag too much
what can you do
when did you quit come in at two go home at five

you grin like a fool
you spit like a cat
you roar like a calf you bark like a dog
you bray like an ass
you look like an owl you gape like a fool

you skip like a lamb
you play by the way you lisp as you talk you do not take time you have miss'd a word
you rise with the sun
you aim to be wise
you have got your task
you may all go home

do not hang your head
do not pick your nose
do not tear your book
do not tear your coat do not talk too much do not talk too loud do not dive too deep do not run too far

did you mind your book did you mind your work did you wash your face did you comb your hair did you play the fool did you get the game did you ring the bell
did you read the news

have you got your task have you read it once have you done your work have you got in debt have you shot a crow does he play the fool does he love his book does he love to read

when did you come home when came you to town when will you have done when will you be wise take care how you read take care of your book take care of your work take care of yourself

I want a new book
I read but a page
I like not the news
I wish you much joy
I wish you safe home
I lent him a book
be not such a fool
be not in a rage

can you sing a song
can you tell a tale
can you run a race
can you read a book
can you blow a horn
let us fall to work
let us take a walk
let us run a race

brush your clothes
black your boots
pare your nails
wash your hands
keep your place learn your book
mind your stops
mend your ways

make no noise
call no names
miss no words
throw no clods
tell the truth
ring the bell
blow the horn
lock the door

do not swear
do not steal
speak the truth
learn to read
learn to spell
still play fair
keep clean hands
go straight home

where is my book where have you been where do they play
what makes you sweat
what makes you cough what makes you laugh
what makes you blush
what did you learn

you stain your clothes
you scratch your head you spoil your book you sleep too long
you laugh too much
you must be whipped
you must not cheat
you bring good news

strive to be good use no bad words
ill words breed strife good boys are best
go straight to school
go learn to read
go learn to write
go to your place

do not throw dirt
do not throw stones
do not play tricks
did you read wrong
did you run off
be on your guard
be not in a haste
be not a clown

who makes that noise

Shall we play in the yard or in the field Let us play in the yard What shall we play at
At hand-ball if you please Where is the ball
Who are to play

I cannot play as well as you
We must do as well as we can We must look to it, if we mean to win You toss the ball too high That was a brave toss

Shall we have a game at the nine pins
With all my heart
Where are the pins
Who shall we get to set them up That part is what I do not like

Jack and I will hold Frank and you Toss up for the go
You have the lead

To the right or left
What a fine day is here
The air is clear and calm There is scarce a cloud to be seen How sweet the hay smells The corn will soon be ripe

There is like to be a fine crop Let us look around us
What a fine plain is here We may see ten or twelve miles at least Hark how the birds sing-How sweet are their notes

Whose fine hat is that The house is new built
The park is full of deer Shall we go to yon wood
With all my heart
It is a sweet place
How thick the trees grow I wish the nuts were ripe

It is time we were at home I fear it will rain
The sky grows dark
It may be a great storm
Let us go to the shade
It will not last long

APPENDIX.

OF READING.

A good child will do as he is bid.

Mark the child that does well and do so too.

Do thou to all men as thou wouldst wish they should do to thee.

Do not tell a lie.

THE GOOD GIRL.

Ann Rose was a good girl, but Tom Rose was a bad boy. Ann learned her book, and did as she was bid.

Ann and Tom one day got some pence from a friend. Ann did not go and buy too much fruit, as Tom did sometimes, but kept her money to buy a doll.

That same day as Tom and Ann stood at the door, a black man came up and asked for something to buy bread. When he held his hat to Tom, Tom made game of him, which was very rude; but Ann gave him the money she had.

The poor man was so glad when she gave him all this, that the tears came into his eyes for joy, and he thanked her ten times over: but shook his head at Tom and told him he had a hard heart.

As she came home from school one day, a great mad dog ran at her to bite her, and would have hurt her much, had not the black man come by just at the time, and beat down the dog with his crutch, and then went home with her.

How well it was for Ann that she made this poor man her friend! I hope, too, all good boys and girls mind how they treat poor folks, for they cannot tell but one of them may prove a friend when they least think of it.

To be good and kind to all, will make all whom we know love us.

HYMN.

Come let us praise God, for he is great; let us bless God for he is very good.

He made all things, the sun to rule the day, the moon to shine by night.

He made the great elephant, and the whale, and the little worm that crawleth on the ground.

The little birds sing praise to God, when they warble sweetly in the green shade.

I will praise God, with my voice; for I may praise him, though I am but a little child.

A few years ago, and I was a little infant, and my tongue was dumb within my mouth.

And I did not know the great name of God, for my reason was not come into me.

But now I can speak, and my tongue shall praise him; I can think of all his kindness and my heart shall love him.

Let him call me and I will come unto him; let him command, and I will obey him.

When I am older I will praise him better; and I will never forget God, so long as my life remaineth in me.

THE GOOD BOY.

There was once a good boy, who took so much pains to learn his book, and to read and spell, that while some boys could scarce tell an O from an A, he would read his book all through, and tell what each of the words meant.

He did not play as he went to school, and lose his time; but made as much haste there as he could, and when school was done, went straight home.

His friends, when they saw how good he was, did all they could to please him and gave him fine good books.

He read all the tales in them, and then told them to the good boys and girls he knew.

When he came from school he did not bring boys and girls in at once, but went to his friends to ask leave to play with them; and in all things was so good, that he went by the name of the king of the good boys.

His name was James Bright, and when the good boys and girls came to see him, they sat by the fire, and did not make a noise, or dirty the room, but each told a tale in his turn.

When James had leave from his friends, they would play at blind man's buff, but that was when there was no fire in the room. It was not right that boys and girls should play at that when there is a fire in the room.

Poor Bob Short will have cause to think of that; for once he was at play so, and while he was blind, all the boys went out of the room that he might not find them, and he went too near the gate, and his clothes caught fire, and he was burnt so much that he was lame all his life.

LESSONS FOR CHILDREN.

Charles, what a clever thing it is to read. A little while ago, you know, you could only read little words and you were forced to spell them; c-a-t, cat; d-o-g, dog. Now you can read pret-ty stories, and I am going to write you some.

Do you know why you are better than puss: puss can play as well as you, and can drink milk, and she can lie up-on the car-pet, and she can run as fast as you, and faster too, a great deal, and she can catch mice, which you cannot do. But can puss talk? No. Can puss read? No. Then that is the rea-son why you are better than puss—because you can talk and read. Can Pi-er-rot, your dog, read? No. Will you teach him? Take the pin and point to the words. No—he will not learn. I never saw a little dog or a cat learn to read. But little boys can learn. If you do not learn, Charles, you are not good for half as much as puss: you had better be drowned.

HYMN.

The Fa-ther, the Mo-ther and their Children, make a fa-mi-ly; the father is the mas-ter thereof. If the fa-mi-ly is numerous and the grounds large, there are servants to help to do the work; all these dwell in one house, they sleep beneath one roof, they eat of the same bread, they kneel down to-gether, and praise God e-ve-ry night and e-ve-ry morning with one voice; they are very closely u-ni-ted, and are dear-er to each other than strangers.

If one is sick, they mourn to-geth-er, and if one is happy, they rejoice together.

Many houses are built together, many families live near one another, they meet together on the green and in pleasant walks, and to buy and sell, and in the house of Justice and the sound of the bell calleth them to the house of God, in company. If one is poor, his neighbors help him; if he is sad, they comfort him.

This is a village, and where it stands enclosed in a green shade and the tall spire peeps above the trees. If there be many houses, it is a town, and is governed by a magistrate.

Many towns and large extent of country, make a kingdom; it is enclosed by mountains, it is divided by rivers, it is washed by the sea; the inhabitants thereof are countrymen, they speak the same language, they make war and peace together, a king is the ruler thereof.

Many kingdoms and countries full of people, and large continents, and different climates, make up this whole world —God governeth it.

The people swarm upon the face of it like ants upon a hillock; some are black with the heat of sun; some cover themselves with furs against the sharp cold, some drink of the fruit of the vine, some of the pleasant milk of the cocoa-nut, and others quench their thirst with the running stream.

All are God's family, he knoweth every one of them, as a shepherd knoweth his sheep, they pray to him in different languages, but he understandeth them all, and heareth them all, he taketh care of all, none are so great that he cannot punish them, none are so mean, that he will not protect them.

Negro woman, who sittest pining in captivity and weeping over thy sick child, though none see thee, God seeth thee, though no one pitieth thee, God pitieth thee; raise thy voice forlorn and abandoned one; call upon him from amidst thy bonds, for assuredly he will hear thee.

Monarch, that rulest over an hundred states; whose frown is as terrible as death, and whose armies cover the land, boast not thyself as though there were none above thee; his powerful arm is always over thee; and if thou doest ill, assuredly he will punish thee.

Nations of the earth, fear the Lord; families of men, call upon the name of your God.

GOOD RESOLUTIONS.

Though I'm now in younger days Nor can tell what shall befall me, I'll prepare for every place Where my growing age shall call me.

Should I e'er be rich or great, Others shall partake my goodness, I'll supply the poor with meat, Never showing scorn or rudeness.

Where I see the blind or lame, Deaf or dumb I'll kindly treat them, I deserve to feel the same,
  If I mock or hurt or beat them.

If I meet with railing tongues, Why should I return them railing?
Since I best revenge my wrongs By my patience never failing.

When I hear them telling lies, Talking foolish, cursing, swearing,
First I'll try to make them wise, Or I'll soon go out of hearing.

What though I be low and mean, I'll engage the rich to love me;
While I'm modest, neat and clean,
  And submit when they reprove me.

If I should be poor and sick, I shall meet I hope with pity; Since I love to help the weak, Though they're neither fair nor witty.

I'll not willingly offend, Nor be easily offended;
What's amiss I'll strive to mend,
  And endure what can't be mended.

May I be so watchful still,
  O'er my humours and my passion,
As to speak and do no ill, Though it should be all the fashion.

Wicked fashions lead to hell, Ne'er may I be found complying;
But in life behave so well,
  Not to be afraid of dying.
